DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What does Rachel learn about her identity during her first days at her new school?
2. The image of Rachel's family falling from the sky is horrific, especially when it's described from Jamie's point of view. How does the reader come to understand what happened in that scene? How did you feel on making that discovery?
3. At the end of the novel, Rachel reflects, "In his eyes, I'm not the new girl. I'm not the color of my skin. I'm a story. One with a past and a future unwritten" (page 264). How does learning, and telling, stories relate to Rachel's changing sense of herself and her family?
